EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Project Overview:
On January 1, 2010, the Arkansas Arts Council (AAC) began the development of a new strategic plan to lead the agency for the next five years. This new plan builds on the foundation set in place by a similar planning process performed in 2005. This new plan provides an update of the AAC’s vision, mission, goals and objectives over the next five years. The following is a breakdown of the goals for the strategic planning process:

1. Develop a new five-year action plan.
2. Integrate metrics into strategic goals to better monitor the AAC’s success.
3. Inform Arkansans about the findings from the creative economy study.
4. Grow the presence of the AAC among its agency partners, other agencies and policy makers throughout the state.
Planning Consultant: To lead the strategic planning process, the AAC contracted with a new non-profit creative development firm based in Helena, Ark., called Thrive. Terrance Clark, co-director of Thrive, worked with key staff and council members to conduct a year-long planning process that resulted in a comprehensive online survey, regional meetings with constituents and two internal strategy meetings with the entire council.

Creative Economy Study: As one of the primary focuses from the last five-year plan, the AAC worked with Regional Technology Strategies and Mt. Auburn Associates, with support from a grant through the Winthrop Rockefeller Foundation, from April 2007 to March 2009 to perform an assessment of Arkansas’s creative economy. The study, resulting in four separate volumes, not only produced usable metrics about the creative economy of Arkansas (i.e., it is the third largest employer), it also generated a comprehensive list of strategic recommendations for state and regional leaders to consider in attempts to grow Arkansas’s creative enterprise infrastructure (RTS, 2007-2009).

The centerpiece of the study was the recommendation to develop an advocacy group to provide additional assistance to creative types and lobby for their cause to generate new incentives and policies. This advocacy group would be a 501(c)3 non-profit organization and act as a citizen-driven partner to the AAC, which would greatly expand the offerings and support to creatives in Arkansas. The creative economy advocacy group would focus on the five following goals:

1. Strengthen recognition of and support for Arkansas’s creative economy within the state’s economic development community.

2. Nurture the development of creative talent and the pipeline of creative workers.

3. Promote the growth and profitability of creative enterprises.

4. Utilize creative talent and assets to increase the competitiveness of other key clusters in Arkansas.

5. Support and expand the state’s creative infrastructure.

Constituent Surveying: To better understand constituent needs and dynamics, Thrive conducted an online survey during the summer months of 2010. The survey questioned more than 600 people from many different culture sectors (i.e., independent artists, art-related non-profits, government employees, non-art related small businesses) to provide a comprehensive analysis of creative constituents in the state and the dynamic they play among other factors involved in economic and community development.

As another measure of the AAC’s work, the survey asked in-depth questions about programs offered through the agency and the quality of access to the arts in Arkansas.

Regional Meetings: The AAC conducted five regional meetings in the state (Little Rock, Texarkana, Bentonville, Van Buren/Fort Smith, and Helena) to inform constituents about the findings and recommendations from the creative economy study and to also gain further insight about the perception and needs of Arkansas’s creative constituents. The information gathered in these public meetings was integral to the creation of the AAC’s next five-year action plan. The meetings also generated momentum in relation to the importance of Arkansas’s creative constituents and what steps must happen next to ensure stability.

February 24, 2010: Strategic Planning Session
History of the Agency:
The AAC was established by state-level executive order in 1966 to allow the state government of Arkansas to receive funds from the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA). In 1971, Act 359 gave independent agency status to the Arts Council, with an executive director and a 17-member council appointed by the governor. In 1975, the AAC became one of the seven divisions of the Department of Arkansas Heritage. In 2003, Act 608 renamed the agency from “The Office of Arkansas State Arts and Humanities” to the “Arkansas Arts Council” (Arkansas State Code, 2010).

Strategic Partners:
- Agencies in the Dept. of Ark. Heritage
- ASU Folklife Program
- Mid-America Arts Alliance Museums Funding Initiative

- Ark. Department of Parks & Tourism
- Ark. Literacy Councils

ARTS COUNCIL PROGRAMS

Grant Programs:
The AAC operates many successful grant programs throughout the state, as follows:

1. Arts In Education (AIE): Initiates new arts programs in schools and local arts agencies and enhances existing ones by providing direct interaction with working artists in residencies. Emphasis is on exposure to the creative process through direct contact with professional artists. Three grants are available for this category: After School/Summer Residency Program, Arts Curriculum Project Grants and In-school Residency Program.

2. AIE Mini Grants: Grant program that funds pre-K through 12 schools for programs during school hours, and/or organizations that provide after school or summer programs. These organizations have an opportunity to apply for AAC funding to:
   i. Bring quality professional artists into the classroom or other location to present one- to five-day, hands-on, curriculum-based arts activities.
   ii. Present an educator professional development workshop in curriculum based arts activities either in conjunction with, or instead of, a residency. Artists must be selected from the Arkansas AIE Artist Roster. Applicants may receive a maximum of $2,000 using established AIE program rates for the artists’ fees, travel, lodging and supplies. A 1:1 in-kind or cash match is required.

3. The Expansion Arts Program: Created to assist qualified emerging arts organizations in developing increased organizational capacity by helping them hire or maintain professional administrative personnel.

4. General Operating Support: Designed for established, professionally managed not-for-profit organizations whose primary purpose is the production or presentation of the arts. Funds must be spent on non-program activities, such as salaries, rent, utilities, maintenance of facilities, staff travel and other expenses associated with the operations of the organization.

5. Individual Artist Fellowships: Unconditional, non-matching awards made directly to individual artists in recognition of their artistic abilities. Awards are based on the creative excellence of works submitted for review and are awarded to a limited number of artists of outstanding talent.

6. Major Arts Partners: This grant program is designed for eligible not-for-profit arts organizations with three-year budget averages equal to or greater than $1 million.

7. Collaborative Project Support: Designed to encourage the production and/or presentation of a specific arts event, program series or multi-disciplinary arts project for Arkansans.

Events/Networks/Award Ceremonies:
The AAC has a mix of online resources and events to assist in networking and building a stronger sense of community among the state’s creative class. The following is a list of specific events and online resources the AAC has put in place to work toward that end:

1. Arkansas Living Treasure Award: Recognizes Arkansas artists who have over a lifetime made significant contributions to their state and communities.
2. Arkansas Artist Registry: A central online resource that documents and promotes Arkansas arts and artists.
3. ArtLinks Conference: A conference for artists, arts administrators, educators, community leaders and other arts advocates. The topic changes from year to year and the event includes speakers and panelists who provide insight on creative programs that are happening throughout Arkansas and around the country.
4. Arts On Tour Roster: A listing of the state’s finest solo and ensemble performers, individual artists and art exhibitions available for touring within Arkansas.
5. AIE Artist Roster: Information about artists approved for AIE residencies.
6. Governor’s Arts Awards: An annual recognition of individuals, organizations and corporations for their support of the arts in Arkansas.
7. Small Works On Paper Touring Exhibition: An annual touring visual arts exhibition coordinated by the AAC.
Overview:
The following section outlines the strategies the AAC will follow from 2011-2015. Utilizing its five goals as an underlying structure, as seen in the Agency Profile, the AAC will follow this action plan to self-evaluate, develop annual staff project plans and implement new strategies in the state to meet the growing needs of key constituents.

The AAC will assist the organization in its efforts to strengthen the network of creative professionals in the state who, at present, are in need of additional support for their creative businesses pursuits; to increase funding and technical assistance for non-profit arts organizations throughout Arkansas; and to increase the amount and quality of arts education programming in pre-K – 12 schools. A similar initiative was active some years ago (Arkansans for The Arts), and the lessons learned from this effort will be applied in the creation of this new entity.
